A Better Choice Because These Ingredients Don't Belong On Your Skin...

Mineral Oil: A mixture of refined liquid hydrocarbons derived from petroleum. It is the stabilizing ingredient of many skin formulas. Mineral oil forms a film on the skin, blocking the pores, and interfering with normal skin respiration. Therefore, it not only dehydrates the skin, but is a contributing cause of blemishes. Leaches nutrients from the skin. Reduces clarity, leaving the skin looking dull.

Petroleum (Petrolatum): Products such as petroleum jelly do not penetrate the skin, but sit on the surface, blocking natural respiration, excretion, and absorption of other nutrients.

Waxes (beeswax, paraffin, candelilla): A sticky sealant that attracts pollutants, dirt and bacteria, and glues them onto the skin as it seals the pores.

Solvent Alcohol: Many skin care products contain solvent alcohols in the form of propyl, isopropyl (petroleum derivatives) or SD alcohol (specially denatured ethyl alcohol). These alcohols are very drying.

Acetone: A petro-chemical, used as a solvent for nail polishes and in skin care products. Extremely drying.

Lanolin: An oily excretion of sheep, lanolin is a common lubricating ingredient in skin care formulas. Extracted from wool, it can cause of allergic skin reactions in sensitive people.

Collagen: An animal product, it is added to cosmetics as a moisturizing agent. Collagen molecules are too large to penetrate the skin and can therefore clog pores, and can cause allergic reactions.

Artificial Colors: Formulated chemically from a wide variety of sources, artificial colors are known to cause allergic reactions.

Artificial Fragrance: Artificial fragrances or perfumes are also known to cause allergic reactions.

Animal Products: No animal or human by-products are used in ARBONNE skin care products!
